SEE AN EXHIBIT

MINIATURE LOCOMOTIVE MODELS -EARLY AND LATE-ARE SHOWN -World's fair exhibit.

Several students and faculty members of the College were entertained last week by an educational exhibit on the south side of the Maryville square. A group of miniature locomotives, the work of Ernest Warther, master carver of Dover, Ohio, were on display. The locomotives made of walnut, ivory, and mother of pearl, were all constructed on a miniature scale according to the blue prints followed in the building of the originals. Every detail was arranged so well in the models that, as yet, engineers have not been able to pick a flaw anywhere in the work. The models show the progress in locomotion from the old "tea kettle" designed by Sir Isaac Walton, which model was never completed, to the present day modern locomotive. The locomotives along with two other models, made entirely of ebony and pearl, and another which the carver has partially finished, will soon be placed on exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair. Tom, Mr. Warther's son who is following in his father's footsteps, can quickly and deftly carve a workable pair of pliers from a block of soft wood. He takes great pride in explaining to on-lookers the details of his father's work.

The exhibit, valued at $250,000, is carried in a steel bodied truck. It is all the results of a man's spare time after a full day's work every day over a period of ten years. The nature of the work and the time required for its completion make their slokan quite appropriate. The slogan is printed in large red letters on the back of the truck—"DETERMINATION."

SIGMA MU DELTA HAS SOCIAL SMOKER

The Sigma Mu Delta Fraternity held its annual rush season smoker last Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. The party was the first social affair to be held at the new fraternity house located at 704 North Mulberry street. The sponsors, W. T. Garrett, H. R Dietarich, and Stephen G. LaMar, honorary member, attended.

The Maryville Daily Forum will send out a special paper giving information on the District Teachers Meeting, here at the College October 19-21, to all members of the Association.

'ENGLAND'S GARDENS" IS SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Miss DeLuce, chairman of the Arts Department of the College, and a member of the Maryville Garden Club, gave a talk to the Garden Club of Hopkins last Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock. She spoke to a full house on the subject, "The Gardens of England." Miss Dow of the Foreign Language Department, Miss Dykes of the English De- FORMER MEMBER OF artment, and Mrs. M. E. Ford of Mary ville were present to hear the talk.

Miss DeLuce began her talk with the words, "The gardener works with the colors and shapes of flowers to make a pleasing arrangement very much as the artist does with paint, brush and canvas." She later gave an interesting and detailed discussion of the gardener in Hampton Court. These are some of the best known gardens of their kind in England and have been imitated in America. She said also that the tennis courts we use as well as our flower gardens were copied from England.

Miss DeLuce acted as judge at the spring flower show in Hopkins.

Glen Duncan, B. S., 1932, was at the College for a brief visit last week. Mr. Duncan whose home is at Excelsion Springs, also visited friends in Marv-

FACULTY MEMBER WRITES FOR BOOK

E. L. KELLEY CONTRIBUTES TO BOOK—HAS SEVERAL ARTICLES IN RECENT MAGAZINES.

E. L. Kelley of the faculty of the Department of Commerce and Business Administration, has recently had several articles published in various magazines. "Legislation and Business Education Certification," was published in The High School Teacher; "Trends in Business Education Certification," in The American Shorthand Teachers: "The Questionable Span of Progress," in The Journal of Business Education; and "Subsidiary Methods of Bookkeeping and Accounting," in The Balance Sheet.

Mr. Kellev is also a conrtibutor to a book "Research in Business Education." This book was published last spring and is now being used as a text in the graduate school of the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, California.

In his articles on Business Education Certification, which appeared in The High School Teacher and The American Shorthand Teacher, Mr. Kelley points out that standards for business education instructors are being made higher. and along with this, there is a growing tendency toward "special" certificates. Several states, at the present time, issue a special certificate for each field of teaching instead of the "blanket" type of certificate. This, Mr. Kelley says, will lead to a greater degree of specialization on the part of teachers. 'We cannot afford to lose any ground or time in certification. It is neither educational economy or progress. When Four wooden soldiers will ride on the better education is "built," certification will do it."

Mr. Kelley's article, "The Questionable Span of Progress," shows facts that make the reader wonder whether the world is really progressing at such a rapid rate of speed after all, Mr. Kelley states in this article that back in 1588 the Italians were using armored tanks which, at the time of the World War, were thought to be an entirely new idea. In 1836, there were motor busses being used in England as a means of travel. These busses were put out of business by the exhorbitant taxes provided for under the law and by the numerous prohibitive regulations, one of them being that the coaches had to be preceded by a man walking and carrying a red flag to warn pedestrians of the dangerous machine. This interesting article sets forth the origin of many more of the so-called "modern" inventions and theories.

BE A GOOD LOSER

A Union soldier who was in the Battle of Gettysburg cherished bitter feelings against the Confederates. He was lying, badly wounded, not far from Cemetery Ridge when General Lee in his retreat rode near him. The soldier recognized him and shouted "Hurrah for the Union." General Lee dismounted and approached. "I thought he meant to kill me," said the soldier in relating the story, "but he looked down at me with such a sad expression, and extending his hand grasped mine and said, 'My son, I hope you will soon be well'." Then he was defeated, retiring from the field of battle that had cost him and his cause their last hope, and yet, he stopped to say words like that to a Union soldier who had taunted him as he passed by.

Let us apply this story to our lives. Many times in our lives, we face competition where we either win or lose. It is easy to be a good winner but it's vary hard to be a good loser. People will always appland the winners, but a close follower of competitive activities will always watch the attitude that the loser takes toward defeat. Nobody should be afraid of defeat if he is defeated fighting in a clean way and takes defeat in a good sportsmanlike manner.

PARTICIPATION AIDS IN LEARNING

By doing, one may learn not only to do but to appreciate. He who tries to paint a picture may miss his aim widely, but he will be better able to understand the work of a master artist because, in some small degree, he has shared the experience of producing something in colors with a brush.

And so it is with music; with literature; with dramatics; and with many of the humbler arts of the guild worker or artisan.

Not only appreciation, but depth of understanding as well, is enhanced by actual participation; the act of doing. Laboratory work in sciences may often be over-emphasized, especially for the student who is not preparing for research. But no one comes to grips with a subject, in the fullest sense, until he has grasped it with his hands. Lectures may be informative. They may enable the student to absorb considerable knowledge in a short time. And with the ever enlarging field of knowledge it may be necessary that many portions be surveyed rather casually.
